

AT THE FRESHMAN'S ELBOW

Rah Rah University, Dec. 15, 1922.

Dear Pater:—

THAT $100.00 you sent me is all gone. You know I've had very heavy expenses this month. In fact I had to buy two new text books and a couple of pencils. I forget whether said books cost forty or fifty iron men but anyhow I got a bargain. The girl at the book store said I was the only fellow that she would sell the books to at cost. She seems to know a live wire when she sees one. I think I'll make a date with her when you send me some more mazuma.

I got into a friendly little game of African golf the other night. I dropped—now let me see—Jim got an I. O. U. for $50.00, Jack took $25.00 and Dave a measly $10.00. Rather cheap for the fun, don't you think? The fellows would appreciate it if you would pay up.

One of the prefects, however, seemed to think I had hard luck because he said something about giving me two weeks' vacation. Rather considerate, eh, what?

I've learned quite a bit since I came to college. O tempore, O mores. You see, pater, I know my Latin exceedingly well. And the other day I learned how to ask the soda jerker for "white mule" in Greek.

Well, pater, I just flipped up a coin and found out that this must be my night off. So I will now cork up the ink bottle.

Your loving filius,

HAROLD.
